MORE ABOUT GYNECOLOGY

WHAT IS GYNECOLOGY ?

Gynecology is medical care that deals with women's reproductive system. Gynecology is about keeping women healthy as well as treating medical conditions and illnesses having to do with the reproductive system.

WHEN DO I NEED TO SEE A GYNECOLOGIST?

All women should have a pelvic exam at 21 years old or earlier if they are sexually active. Physicians will examine you to make sure that your body is developing normally and that there are no problems with menstruation or other issues.

WHAT IS A PAP TEST AND WHEN IS IT RECOMMENDED ?

A Pap test (also known as a Pap Smear) is a test for cervical cancer. It is one of the most important gynecology tests a woman should have on a regular basis to keep healthy. In an examination room, the doctor gently swabs a tiny sample of cells from the patient's cervix (the opening of the uterus). The sample is then sent to a lab to test for any abnormal cells. Abnormal cells do not mean the patient has cervical cancer but further tests may be needed.

All women age 21 and above should get a Pap Test every 3 years.
